

Dyslexia Foundation of Memphis

A great way to finish the school year is with the Foundation and start 2023 with a boost.

Happy New Year 2023!

A New Year is a good time to reflect on many things. I have been reflecting on the Dyslexia Foundation of Memphis. After 40 years in the Foundation, I have seen so much growth and change, some good and some not so good, but change all the same. Recently, I found a letter written a couple of years ago from a parent whose son had been in the foundation for 3 years. It is a letter of thanks; one I could have written many years ago; because I felt much the same way after our son had been in the Foundation for a few years. I thought you might like to read it:

Karen, how can I tell you how much the Foundation changed our lives? We were struggling for help dyslexia and to understand as much as our son was struggling to keep up in class and learn to read!!! In despair, I was calling every school in the yellow pages 4 years ago when I saw your listing and called. Paula was very calm and so convincing in assuring us that you could help, and you delivered. Our son (and I) did 3 summer sessions and may possibly do another one in the future. Sometime his year it has "clicked" for him and while he is not reading as well as he probably should, he can keep up in the classroom and maintain the A/B Honor Roll!!! He even read a library book all on his own!

I also gained, not only learning how to help him, but that I could even at my age, still offer something to these children and it was fun. Our

Thoughts from the Prez

Well, another semester has come to a close with a bang! We had 27 students attend the session. We has 6 students receive trophies for completing books and 4 students receive ribbons for Perfect Attendance and 17 receive ribbons for Great Effort. Our award ceremony at the end of each semester is a wonderful time for our students to receive recognition for the hard work they have done during the semester. Most of our students do not receive recognition in regular school so this is an especially important time for them to "shine". It also gives the parents a time to be especially proud of their children. The parents are encouraged to express their pleasure in their child with a pat on the back plus a small token of affection. This can be an ice cream cone, a toy or a special treat their child really likes but mainly it is

Creativity Test

IQ test usually measure your verbal and mathematical skills. What we want to do here is measure your associative flexibility. There may be other possible answers than the ones given, but at least you can use this as a gauge to see how fluid your thinking skills are.

This test will give you some idea of your mental plasticity and, therefore creativity.

INSTRUCTIONS: Each question below contains the initials of the words that will make it a correct phrase. Find the missing words.

FOR EXAMPLE: 7=D in a W      ANSWER: 7 = Days in a week.

about spending time together. For one family, their child requested an afternoon playing Monopoly. The idea is being together as a family. In this increasingly busy world, family time is becoming harder and harder to carve out time to be with family.

Recently, I was at a restaurant and noticed a father and son having lunch. The son kept looking at his father and the father was so busy on his phone he never noticed his son who so obviously wanted his dad to notice him. I couldn't help but think, what a perfect opportunity it was to be a dad and spend the time with his son instead for spending the time on his phone. There is a wonderful song, Cat's In The Cradle by Harry Chapin, that expresses this idea. The song starts off with the son asking the father to come out and play with him and the father responds that he is busy but will come play soon...the song repeats this idea that the father is too busy to "play" with his son as he grows up. Then the song changes, now the father is asking the son to visit. The son replies that he is too busy but will visit soon.

Our children are a "handful" to raise so it is doubly important to develop a relationship when they are young so when they become grown they know they can count on you, the parent, for advice, son calls it "summer camp" and always looked forward to attending.

Thanks for all you offer, all you do, and for making it an enjoyable experience for these special children.

We are bubbling with excitement because our students did so well during the Fall Semester of 2022. We know that they will do even better in the Spring of 2023. Our parents know that their children are going to do well in the Spring Semester of 2023 because the school is beginning to fill up, so get your application in quickly. If you count the hours, you can see for yourself that the cost is about $5.00 an hour for your child to receive one on one tutoring when you tutor. I don't think you will regret it.

I know Saturday morning is a busy time for most of you but it is a wonderful time to help your child and they will get so much out of Saturday School. If you have questions, give me a call. I would love to talk to you and answer your questions. My cell number is 901 671-7399. We meet at Lord of Life Lutheran Church at 6865 Poplar Pike, Memphis, TN 38119. We meet for 14 Saturday mornings starting on January 21 and ending on April 22 from 8:30 am till 12:35 pm. To get all the scheduled dates, please check our webpage at www.memphisdyslexia.org.

This is a great program that works well! Please give us a try, your child will thank you and if you come and tutor both you and your child will grow together and your bond will strengthen because of this experience you both share. If you are interested in learning more, our New Parents meeting is held on Jan 12 at 7:00 pm at Lord of Life Lutheran church. This meeting will give you a chance to ask questions and receive more information about our organization.

The Dyslexia Foundation of Memphis was started over 50 years ago by a group of parents who had concerns about their children doing well in school. We are still an organization of concerned parents providing a chance for their children and the children of other parents to have a chance to do better in school and in life. Hope you will attend our New Parent meeting and you and your child will attend the Spring Session.

Respectfully, Karen Carson, Director

The gift

Jean Thompson stood in front of her fifth-grade class on the very first day of school in the fall and told the children a lie. Like most teachers, she looked at her pupils and said that she loved them all the same, that she would treat them all alike. And that was impossible because there in front of her, slumped in his seat on the third row, was a little boy named Teddy Stoddard.

Mrs. Thompson had watched Teddy the year before and noticed he didn't play well with the other children, that his clothes were unkempt and that he constantly needed a bath. And Teddy was unpleasant. It got to the point during the first few months that she would actually take delight in marking his papers with a broad red pen, making bold X's and then marking the F at the top of the paper biggest of all.

Because Teddy was a sullen little boy, no one else seemed to enjoy him, either. At the school where Mrs. Thompson taught, she was required to review each child's records and she put Teddy's off until last. When she opened his file, she was in for a surprise. His first-grade teacher wrote, "Teddy is a bright, inquisitive child with a ready laugh. He does his work neatly and has good manners...he is a joy to be around."

His second-grade teacher wrote, "Teddy is an excellent student well-liked by his classmates, but he is troubled because his mother has a terminal illness and life at home must be a struggle."

His third-grade teacher wrote, "Teddy continues to work hard but his mother's death has been hard on him. He tries to do his best but his father doesn't show much interest and his home life will soon affect him if some steps aren't taken."

Teddy's fourth-grade teacher wrote, "Teddy is withdrawn and doesn't show much interest in school. He doesn't have many friends and sometimes sleeps in class. He is tardy and could become a problem." By now Mrs. Thompson realized the problem but Christmas was coming fast.

It was all she could do, with the school play and all, until the day before the holidays began and she was suddenly forced to focus on Teddy Stoddard.

Her children brought her presents, all in beautiful ribbon and bright paper, except for Teddy's, which was clumsily wrapped in the heavy, brown paper of a scissored grocery bag. Mrs. Thompson took pains to open it in the middle of the other presents. Some of the children started to laugh when she found a rhinestone bracelet with some of the stones missing, and a bottle that was one-quarter full of cologne. She stifled the children's laughter when she exclaimed how pretty the bracelet was, putting it on, and dabbing some of the perfume behind the other wrist.

Teddy Stoddard stayed behind just long enough to say, "Mrs. Thompson, today you smelled just like my mom used to." After the children left she cried for at least an hour.

On that very day, she quit teaching reading, and writing, and speaking. Instead, she began to teach children. Jean Thompson paid particular attention to one they all called "Teddy." As she worked with him, his mind seemed to come alive. The more she encouraged him, the faster he responded. On days there would be an important test, Mrs. Thompson would remember that cologne.

By the end of the year he had become one of the smartest children in the class and... well, he had also become the "pet" of the teacher who had once vowed to love all of her children exactly the same.

A year later she found a note under her door, from Teddy, telling her that of all the teachers he'd had in elementary school, she was his favorite.

Six years went by before she got another note from Teddy. He then wrote that he had finished high school, third in his class, and she was still his favorite teacher of all time.

Four years after that, she got another letter, saying that while things had been tough at times, he'd stayed in school, had stuck with it, and would graduate from college with the highest of honors. He assured Mrs. Thompson she was still his favorite teacher.

Then four more years passed and yet another letter came. This time he explained that after he got his bachelor's degree, he decided to go a little further. The letter explained that she was still his favorite teacher but that now his name was a little longer.

The letter was signed, Theodore F. Stoddard, MD.

The story doesn't end there. You see there was yet another letter that Spring. Teddy said he'd met this girl and was to be married. He explained that his father had died a couple of years ago and he was wondering...well, if Mrs. Thompson might agree to sit in the pew usually reserved for the mother of the groom. And guess what, she wore that bracelet, the one with several rhinestones missing. And I bet on that special day, Jean

Thompson smelled just like... well, just like the way Teddy remembered his mother smelling on their last Christmas together.

THE MORAL: You never can tell what type of impact you may make on another's life by your actions or lack of action. Consider this fact in your venture through life. Imagine there is a bank that credits your account each morning with $86,400. It carries over no balance from day to day. Every evening it deletes whatever part of the balance you failed to use during the day.

What would you do? Draw out every cent, of course!

Each of us has such a bank. Its name is TIME. Every morning, it credits you with 86,400 seconds. Every night it writes off, as lost, whatever of this you have failed to invest to good purpose. It carries over no balance. It allows no overdraft. Each day it opens a new account for you. Each night it burns the remains of the day. If you fail to use the day's deposits, the loss is yours. There is no going back. There is no drawing against the "tomorrow". You must live in the present on today's deposits. Invest it so as to get from it the utmost in health, happiness and success! The clock is running. Make the most of today.

To realize the value of ONE YEAR, ask a student who failed a grade.

To realize the value of ONE MONTH, ask a mother who gave birth to a premature baby.

To realize the value of ONE WEEK, ask the editor of a weekly newspaper.

To realize the value of ONE DAY, ask a daily wage laborer with kids to feed.

To realize the value of ONE HOUR, ask the lovers who are waiting to meet.

To realize the value of ONE MINUTE, ask a person who missed the train.

To realize the value of ONE-SECOND, ask a person who just avoided an accident.

To realize the value of ONE MILLI-SECOND, ask the person who won a silver medal in the Olympics.

Treasure every moment that you have! And treasure it more because You shared it with someone special, special enough to spend your time. And remember that time waits for no one.

Yesterday is history.

Tomorrow a mystery.

Today is a gift...that's why it's called "the present!"

To all my fellow Dads –

Just wanted to send out a note to say thank you for all you do for your children. I bought a power screw-driver the other day and it came with a manual – in three languages. Then I bought a set of shelves. It's got a set of directions as well. But both my children came into this world with nothing – no guidelines, no operator's instructions, not a single tip, hint or suggestion. Not even a warning sticker that they were dyslexic...NOTHING. It was as if God thought "Nah, there's no need, surely a dummy can raise one of these." I have long appreciated His confidence, but ...my wife seemed to have a knack for this parenting thing right from the get-go. I'm not saying it was easy for her, in fact there were times (lots of them I'm afraid) when I probably made it harder. But, the learning curve for me was pretty darn steep. Now that both of the children are grown, I'm finally feeling a little more confident. Sometimes wishing I could have another shot at it, not wishing real hard mind you, and sometimes thankful just to have survived. Maybe I can do better with the grandkids. Maybe there were no directions because there's never been just one right way. Some of us spend hours coaching them through sports, fostering their love of touchdowns or RBIs or a favorite team – or is it our favorite team. Some prefer the camping and hiking path, teaching them tents and campfires and how to find your way out of the woods. Some help master Calculus and Physics, an effort that started long ago when we saw the joy on their face as they realized they could "add and take-away." Still others trail along from recital to recital, lugging outfits, and hair things and make-up stuff that apparently carry some life-and-death significance we'll never understand. And, some spend every waking hour at a job (or several) because that's what their family needs most. And though we may not be limited to one "right way", I can attest there are quite a few wrong ones. The variations on that theme I could list would take a very long time and a lot of paper for me to list. Let's just say I didn't perfect fatherhood – and leave it at that.

Best wishes to all of you. Loving our children in some miraculous way we might never have thought was possible – I guess God thought that was a good start. Not enough certainly; but, without it, what else would matter.

Thank you for all you do.
