We Rock—Join us for our Summer Program

Annual Meeting Letter

Goodness how time flies, it seems like only yesterday that I was writing an article for the Fall 2014's newsletter. Here it is May 2014. Where does the time go? For those of you who missed our Annual Meeting, we had a last minute change in the program. Our former student graduate and present supervisor, Lisa Pennington, was scheduled to give a speech on how our Foundation has helped her achieve her present success as a student of the University of Memphis, graduating with honors on May 10. We reshewed the HBO movie "The Big Picture". The movie interviewed several successful dyslexics and told how dyslexia, once thought of as a disability, actually helped each of them become very successful men and women. Lisa was unable to give her speech since her mother was injured and is presently in the hospital in serious condition. Lisa promised that she will give her

Thoughts from the Prez

Greetings my fellow dyslexics,

Good news awaits on every side of this newsletter! Our annual Meeting was a success. We learned that Dyslexia turns out not to be a disability in one's life but can be a very positive part of one's life. Several very successful people including billionaire Richard Branson, founder of the Virgin Group, which comprises more than 400 companies, says that his dyslexia helps him to "think outside the box". His creative genius and his dyslexia help him dream up ideas that grow into companies like Virgin Airlines. The movie we watched was HBO's film "The Big Picture". It interviews several dyslexics who talk about once you understand and accept you have dyslexia you can turn your disability into a very positive part of your life. The movie interviews people from many walks of life—from high school and college students to doctors, lawyers, and business executives who describe how they used their dyslexia as a positive influence in their lives.

Another positive news article in our newsletter is Tennessee House Bill 1735, see page 7, that has been passed by the Senate and pending in the House which many are calling "The Dyslexia is Real" bill. Please take the time to contact Cameron Sexton of the House and Becky Duncan Massey and thank them for sponsoring the bill. Then contact your representatives and ask them to support House passage of the bill. While dyslexia legislation is only now being introduced in Tennessee, the dyslexia movement is a national movement. Help your child's education by getting involved now. Several states have already passed similar legislation including: New Jersey,

Wish List

Here is a list of items that were requested by the Program Directors. Some are just wishes; others are needed. If you have any of the following items or know of a company that will donate them please do so. Thanks "The Staff"

Help, we especially need your help in replenishing the store room supplies. If you would like to give a donation of snack food, or toys for the "store", we would sure love to receive them. We need snack foods like:

GoldFish & Animal Crackers                      apples popcorn                      Pretzels                      etc.

We REALLY need TOYS, GAMES OR PUZZLES which are used for rewards in our store where the students may redeem their tokens for toys.

We need your help.    db speech next year. So make your plans now to attend our Annual Meeting on April 18, 2015.

This year Marilyn McDonald and others had gotten several companies to donate some great gifts including:

Rum Boogie Café	The Pig on Beal
King's Place	Mesquite Chop House
Incredible Pizza	Papa John's
Red Birds Baseball	Orpheum
Pink Palace	Memphis Botanic Gardens
Memphis Zoo	Playhouse on the Square
Golf & Games	Malco

Please stop by these companies and thank them for their donation. We had many individuals donate items to help make this year's Annual Meeting, dinner and silent auction a great success. We had several students from St. Benedict volunteer their time to come help set up and clean up. Then there were our own wonderful volunteers who spent the entire day and a lot of the night, setting up for the meeting and then cleaning up afterward. They were Lisa O'Neal, Regina Hutchins, Linda Fitzhugh, Fairy, Razak, Alexandra Wakefield, Marilyn McDonald, Tina Carson, Lisa Pennington, Kayleigh Betts, Carolyn Vickers, Sabrina Woodruff and her mom; I even helped a little. These wonderful volunteers even helped clean up after spending all day setting everything up. What great dedication. Then there were all those, too numerous to list them all, who donated time, money, food and items for the silent auction. It was truly an all-out effort by all involved to make this year's event a success. The proverb which says it takes a village to raise a child could not be truer than the effort each of you put in to help raise each of our students. Not only did we raise over $4000.00, we, hopefully, helped some parents and friends understand the problem the children face and that they can overcome it and succeed. I felt it was a super evening. I hope everyone who attended enjoyed themselves also. If I did not thank someone for their help or donation please chalk it up to my "sometimers" disease. As you probably know, the mind is the first thing to go and mine left a long time ago. If you find it somewhere, please return it. I often miss it...when I remember it is gone. Again, many thanks to everyone who helped with <sup>db</sup> the Annual Meeting.

Donations

Mississippi, Arkansas, Ohio, and many more. The bill states that dyslexia is to be named as a recognized learning disability and allows students with dyslexia to receive help. So if you can get through the legal-ease of the bill it would be great if you would tell me the ins and outs of the bill so I can write it up in the next newsletter. No matter how I understand the bill the important part is, once it is passed and is law, it will be great to be able to say "My child is dyslexic" in an IEP meeting and they receive the help they need.

Even more good news! Once I taught a class full of learning disabled students at SFA. It was a wonderful experience and one I will always remember with fondness, but, as with most teacher /student / parent relationships there are some more memorable than others. As a classroom teacher of LD students I was very structured. Everything had a right way to do things. Even the smallest detail of the classroom was structured. Things like when to sharpen a pencil, the way to walk around the classroom, etc. Now I know what you are thinking; but consider auto traffic. If everyone drove any direction they wanted to, it would be crazy with traffic jams everywhere. Think how distracting it is to hear a pencil being sharpened every minute of the school day - during tests and while teaching. These are very distracting to students and teachers alike. Even walking quietly around the room can break the student's train of thought much less the grinding of the pencil sharpener! So, you get the picture, we had rules. Everyone thought too many rules. But life has rules, lots of rules but where would we be without rules? ANYWAY, back to my story. There was one family, mom, dad and 2 boys. They made such an impression on me because their lives were ripped apart by illness, loss of a job; and finding out that their oldest son had dyslexia. There is a wonderful speaker, Rick Lavoie, who I have heard in person, watched his DVDs and read his books. One of his favorite analogies is comparing finding out your child has dyslexia to your child has died. He calls this the 7 stages of grief. You go through denial, guilt, anger, depression, the upward turn, working through, and lastly acceptance and hope. It is true, I experienced all of these when our son was diagnosed as dyslexic. Well, this poor family was in denial with anger mixed in for good measure. I was the main focus for all of these feelings. The more I tried to explain about dyslexia and that college and beyond can be very normal and successful, the more angry the parents would become. I tried to instill in my students and their parents a positive outlook and highly developed organizational skills; because dyslexia causes some disorganization in the brain. If you can train yourself to be organized or structured then you have a better chance of overcoming some of the problems associated with dyslexia and learning disabilities. Needless to say, the mom was only interested in "curing" the problems. I tried to explain there is no magic pill, dyslexia does not go away. You must learn coping skills. It is a lifelong condition but is not a death sentence. I feel the people interview in the movie "The Big Picture" have the right idea; dyslexia can have a very positive impact on your life once you come to acceptance and turn the disability into a special ability. Well this sweet mom and I were at cross purposes the entire year her older son was in my class. I tried to be gentle with her but held firm on my teaching techniques. Years later she saw me and confided that the "silly" rules had turned out to be a lifesaver in her son's school career. Then this May I received a lovely note and a beautiful invitation to a graduation ceremony from Ole Miss University - he did it! the only thing I could say was I knew you could! I have been working with LD students and their parents for over 30 years and I say the same things over and over. Working with LD students is like trying to empty the ocean with a tea cup. You feel like you are getting nowhere fast. You are always taking baby steps. But then POW!, lightning strikes and everything falls into place. With young children it is phonic, then blending sounds into words; then reading with expression, next comes reading with comprehension and so forth. With older children, it is memory and organization skills. Please trust me that this knowledge will come as long as the children are treated with love and understanding. Our main goal should be to keep their self-confidence up. Belief in self is the most important part. Academics are also important, they make everything fall into place. That is why I feel that the Dyslexia Foundation Tutoring Program is so important for a child with dyslexia. There are several reasons for this. First, we teach 1 on 1 so the students are always engaged. Second, there are other students present with similar problems so everyone can see that they are not the only one with these problems. Third, we teach a positive frame of mind and

20 Tips to Promote Positive Self-esteem

By Richard D. Lavoie, M.A., M.Ed.

A dynamic relationship exists between self-esteem and skill development. As a child improves in self-esteem, his academic competence increases. And as that competence increases, his self-esteem improves. The caring and concerned caregiver must come to realize that positive self-esteem is both a prerequisite and a consequence of academic success. Here are 20 tips to help foster a child's self-esteem:

- 1) Value each child as an individual with unique strengths, needs, interests and skills.
- 2) Focus on the child's strengths. Emphasize and celebrate his "islands of competence."
- 3) Reject the child's behavior, but never reject the child. Use affectionate terms and nicknames when scolding ("Your room is a mess, honey. Now turn off the TV and make your bed.").
- 4) Remember that sincere interest can be more effective and meaningful than praise. Demonstrate a genuine interest in her activities, hobbies, etc.
- 5) Establish realistic, achievable goals for your child. Anticipate success.
- 6) Avoid using sarcasm with kids - children with language problems often misinterpret it.
- 7) When discussing an issue or a problem, avoid bringing up past difficulties.
- 8) Never compare one child to another.
- 9) Help the child develop decision-making and problem-solving skills.
- 10) Understand that mistakes are an inevitable (and valuable!) part of any learning experience. Use these as an opportunity to teach and assist.
- 11) Divide large tasks into smaller, manageable ones. This will ensure success, mastery, and retention.
- 12) Maintain a file of his academic work. Use this to demonstrate his progress and development when he is feeling down.
- 13) Encourage him to maintain "collections" (e.g., baseball cards, stamps, rocks, etc.). This allows him to be the resident expert on a topic.
- 14) If she does not participate in team sports, promote individual sports (e.g., skiing, golf, swimming). This will provide opportunities for success, exercise, and peer interaction.
- 15) Communicate your confidence in the child and in her future.
- 16) Permit and encourage the child to follow the normal fads of his peer group (e.g., clothing, music). This will enhance his acceptance at school and in the community.
- 17) Emphasize the positive aspects of her behavior or performance, even if the task was not completely successful. Reward direction, not perfection.
- 18) Anticipate that the child will have plateaus, failures, backslides, setbacks, and regressions. Support and encourage him at these times. Kids need love most when they deserve it least!
- 19) Look for opportunities to offer him choices to allow him to practice decision-making skills.
- 20) Never, ever, communicate disappointment to your child. The disappointment of an adult may be too great a burden for a child to carry.

Remember:

Your child's self-esteem will be determined by the conditional acceptance that he receives from others -and the unconditional acceptance that he receives from you and

Your child's self-esteem will be determined by success and progress in four areas:

- Social (acceptance, friendships)
- Competence (in a skill area)
- Physical (clothing, attractiveness)
- Character (effort, generosity, etc.)

Emphasize, recognize and reinforce all four areas!

Summer is a great opportunity to continue learning outside of the classroom. There are lots of age-appropriate ways to expand vocabulary and build on reading skills that were learned during the school year.

As you think about what's best for your child, consider visiting the library and letting him choose what he wants to read. At home, you could establish a family reading time to show your child that reading is important for everyone.

Visit the Zoo, the Pink Palace, Lichterman Center, Children's Museum. There are a tremendous number of locations that are not only fun but educational. Remember, learning is not done just in school.

with lots of praise to keep spirits high. Fourth, we teach a variety of subjects (not just reading) because we know that our students need exposure to several academic areas. I have to say our program is Great! The summer program is the best of the three programs because it is 5 days a week and the children don't have time to forget what they have learned the day before. The Saturday program is very good but the Summer Session is Super! Hope you can make plans for you and your child to attend. We will be looking for you on June 10 for the New Parents Meeting if you are new to the program, and June 12 and 13 for the workshop. The student's first day will be June 16. Hope to see you there.

HOUSE BILL 1735

By Sexton

SENATE BILL 2002

AN ACT to amend Tennessee Code Annotated, Title 49, relative to dyslexia.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE STATE OF TENNESSEE:

SECTION 1. Tennessee Code Annotated, Title 49, Chapter 6, Part 3, is amended by adding the following as a new section:

49-6-304.

For the purposes of this chapter and chapter 10, "dyslexia" means a specific learning disability that is neurological in origin and is characterized by difficulties with accurate or fluent word recognition and by poor spelling and decoding abilities. These difficulties typically result from a deficit in the phonological component of language that is often unexpected in relation to other cognitive abilities and the provision of effective classroom instruction. Secondary consequences may include problems in reading comprehension and reduced reading experience that can impede growth of vocabulary and background knowledge.

SECTION 2. Tennessee Code Annotated, Section 49-6-3004(c)(1), is amended by adding the following language at the end of the subdivision:

In addition to other topics offered during in-service days of training, training shall formally address dyslexia and similar reading disorders and provide effective instruction for students with dyslexia using appropriate scientific research and brain-based multisensory intervention methods and strategies.

SECTION 3. Tennessee Code Annotated, Title 49, Chapter 10, Part 1, is amended by adding the following as a new section:

49-10-115.

In addition to other training and resources authorized by this chapter, the department of education shall collaborate with institutions of higher education to formally address dyslexia, as defined in § 49-6-304, and similar reading disorders by providing educators and teachers training in providing effective instruction for students with dyslexia using appropriate scientific research and brain-based multisensory intervention methods and strategies.

SECTION 4. This act shall take effect July 1, 2014, the public welfare requiring it. It shall apply to in-service training beginning in the 2014-2015 school year.
